WINSTON-SALEM, CITY OF PROGRESS

"Living in Winston-Salem is not an experience of isolation and loneliness because men and women find friends and form friendships here in a spiritual atmosphere, sincere in its welcome and lasting in its fellowship."

Thus wrote Dr. Howard Roudthaler, President of Salem College.

Located in the fertile Piedmont section, in the heart of the richest county in the state, Winston-Salem has achieved world-wide distinction as an industrial center, ranking among the 35 leading manufacturing cities of the United States. Here are manufactured nearly a quarter of all the products of North Carolina.

To accommodate a population that has increased 1,700 per cent in fifty years, building has steadily extended both upward and outward. Old as the city is in historic associations, it is distinctly new in its housing, shopping and manufacturing facilities. Winston-Salem may be described as a twentieth-century city built on eighteenth-century foundations and traditions.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Never before in the history of medicine has organization been so imperative. The newer trends in medicine present a real challenge. The solution to this challenge can be answered only through effective organization. Hence, the keynote of the Forty-ninth Session of the Old North State Medical, Dental and Pharmacentical Society is the perfection of a thorough organization.
